Dear Professor Fairley:

I have just had word from Dr. Locke about the misuse of privileges in the Public Library by our students who have been using translations of Goethe and Schiller. They have been writing notes on the margins of the books, taking them away from the Library and even cutting out portions of them. It seems to me that the only way to meet this now that "Varsity" is not being published is for Professors to make announcements with regard to it in their classes and to inform them that if we have any further word of the misuse of these privileges we will advise Dr. Locke to withdraw them from the students. Will you please make this announcement to your classes ?

Yours sincerely,

President.

Dear Mr. President,

I have carried out your instructions in the matter of the misuses that have been practised at the Reference Library by students of German. If there are any further offences I would shonely recommend that we obtain fuller details from the Library authorities and have the offences home to individual students, who could then be reprimanded privately. I very much hope, however, that there will be no recurrence of such disgraceful practices.

Yours faithfully
